est stare that common decency will per mit. An American lady, well dressed, cannot pass through a crowded London street without being gazed at, and remarked upon, at almost every step.

The explanation of this strange difference lies in the fact that the sympathy between Paris and New York 18 immediate and complete, while that be tween London and Paris is indirect, at best, and imperfect always. Even in London, I think that Paris is acknowl-London, I think that Paris is neknowledged to be alike the center and arbiter of fashion; but they never adopt a fashion in London until it has been outlived in Paris and New York. The short dresses, for instance, will not be universally adopted for the street until next year, in England. It may be that they never will be adopted there. I beard an intelligent and wealthy English lady remark, a day or two ago, the london in the light of the street until next year, in the person senting it can have the holes of the following articles as their comm used in the holes of th I beard an intelligent and wealthy English lady remark, a day or two ago, that the short dresses were only fit to wear at a watering place, and that they not decent to wear when contemplating the prises are very low for cash. were not decent to wear when one was at home and among one's friends. I ink it likely that so sensible a fashion hardly be quietly ignored, and that by, England will rejoice in a show of ankles. I have April 22, 1868, n43.

will have no garment that will look outlandish in Paris. In some things there will be slight modifications, often for the better, but the fundamentals are always the same; and there is nevor to give the slightest uncomfortable feeling to the stranger exhibiting them. Here, on the continent, one can never distinguish an American from a Frenchman by anything he wears, nor can a Parisian lady be distinguished from a New York lady by her apparel; but an Englishwoman, and especially an English woman, and especially an English woman, and especially an English woman and the general loosaness and as she can be seen. Temper Under Control.

It is one of the rich rewards of selfmastery that the very occurences which feet the temper of an irritable person, bring relief and satisfaction to him who rules his spirit. The following anecdote of Wilberforce is in point: A friend told me that he found him once in the greatest agitation looking for a American Life pointing out of searon life the lands of moment—he seemed at last quite verget and flurried. AMERICAN ALOE This delicious proparation, made from the goet of the American Alos, (agavo), is the fa-gratic, and almost universal beverage of the inhabitants of the mountains of Peru, Mexico, and Lowe, California, where the plant grows and lower valuerina, where he plant grows in wild 'uxuri2nce. Their physicians constantly reco. mend it as a stimulant, and diusotic, in all the cases where such a remedy is indicated. One or 'he Propu'elors, in travsling through Mexico and Lower California, several years ago, had confuded to him by a Spanish Padre, the Recipe for its reparation They now offer it to the public with the hope that its high reputation as a remedy on the Pacific Coast, will be infinitely enhanced by its success upon the Atlantic. Its undoubted efficacy in Gravel, Gout, Chronic Rhoumailsm, Incipient Dropey, Flatulence, Colic Psins; in Obstructions in the Bladder, Kidneys, and Urinary Organs; in Dyspepsia, and General Debility, and in Exhausted Vital Energy—is unrivaled. It is considered by the Mexicans to be an absolute specific for Scurry. DIRECTIONS.
